12. Educational aims of the programme

This programme is designed to engage students in a wide-ranging examination of the theories and practices of theatre, acting and performance. It is highly relevant to those considering a range of careers in the performing arts, including as performers, writers, theatre-makers, and project managers, but has equal relevance to those considering employment in related areas such as teaching or drama therapy, and will develop a range of transferable skills and qualities that will further broaden their employment and study opportunities.

At the heart of the course is the aim that students should be able to interrogate and apply theory in a practical way. The teaching reflects this by examining theory through both practice and debate. Critical analysis and the creative application of informed ideas are thus a cornerstone of the students' experience and are reflected in the aims and outcomes for the programme. These are directly related to the QAA Subject Benchmark Statement and aim to ensure that all students will have the opportunity to:

- develop individual and collective skills and the necessary work ethic in order to be suitable for a broad range of employment opportunities;
- develop an entrepreneurial approach to the use and application of theatre, acting and performance techniques and methodologies in a range of contexts;
- acquire and develop a range of intellectual and performative, subject-specific and transferable skills and qualities which will support students in academic study, graduate employment and/or postgraduate study;
- gain intellectual, creative and personal independence and confidence;
- develop an aesthetic appreciation of theatre, acting & performance and gain creative and performance skills commensurate with those evident in professional practice;

- engage with concepts, ideas and debates that broaden and challenge perceptions and existing ideologies.

14. Learning, teaching and assessment

Overview of the key approaches to learning and teaching

Level 4 teaching and learning introduces skills and concepts that form the foundation of the course. Skills in the understanding and performing of script-based work is delivered in THEA1000, devising and physical theatre skills are explored in THEA1001, with additional attention to the use of visual mediums such as puppetry and mask work in THEA1002. Acting skills are focused on directly in THEA1003, and a hands-on experience of technical production (eg the setting up and creative use of light, sound and set) in THEA1004. THEA1005 extends students understanding of theatre as applied in a variety of socially engaged contexts and introduces the concept of co-creation.

In addition, the Level 4 modules aim at the provision of core student skills. THEA1000 supports students with academic reading and writing skills appropriate for analytic and critical approaches. THEA1001 helps students develop a sense of group identity and collective responsibility in preparation for future collaborative work. It also enables students to develop principles of self and peer assessment.

Level 5 builds on and extends understanding and skills introduced at Level 4, providing new subject learning for students to begin to develop their own individual strengths. Level 5 offers a stronger focus on large group production work, informed by research, through the mandatory module THEA2001, which is a major directed public performance project. In the mandatory module THEA2000 students explore the development and application of acting techniques across a range of media such as stage, screen, radio and online platforms. Students then choose four optional modules from the list above such as: THEA2003 Applied Theatre Practices which continues the investigation of drama within various social and community contexts, and introduces workshop skills; THEA2004 which builds on THEA1004 in exploring the creative use of technology (e.g. projections, live feed, online performance) in performance; THEA2002 which builds on THEA1001 to extend movement and choreographic skills and understanding; THEA2005 which focuses on the development of the written word in performance: THEA2006 which allows students to widen and deepen their understanding of the history and possibilities of musical theatre and THEA2008 that develops technical theatre skills that support the directed public performance.

Level 6 promotes the demonstration of a mature critically aware approach to the subject, and a range of advanced transferable skills. All Single Honours Theatre, Acting & Performance students culminate their study with a 30-credit Independent Project: either THEA3000 Final Performance Project (taken individually or in groups) or THEA3012 Independent Research Project (taken individually). Students will be offered the opportunity for professional practice and development in THEA3003, where they can either undertake a work placement or a work study of a professional company or venue. They will also develop skills in CV and job application writing and interview and audition skills. Alongside these sit a range of further optional modules that allow students to build on previous learning and continue to extend and explore their individual interests. Throughout Level 6, there is a shift to increased independent learning and self-direction, with support and supervision from staff and professionals.

Teaching

Students are taught through a combination of interactive workshops, lectures, seminars, rehearsal activity, site-work and tutorials, accompanied by independent research, learning, and development. Theatre, Acting & Performance modules are predominantly practice led, with an embedded approach to theory and research. Students benefit from access to two professionally equipped theatre studios that support practice-based learning, and module delivery makes extensive use of Blackboard and other e-learning tools including social media platforms, Padlet, Office 365, Panopto, Drama Online, Digital Theatre Plus etc.

The transferable skills of Theatre, Acting & Performance graduates are much sought after in a range of other environments such as business and education. As the development of an appropriate work ethic, including taking on roles and responsibilities, negotiation, decision making, leadership, and interpersonal engagement are essential in any kind of production work, this is embedded in the learning & teaching and assessment strategies employed by the department.

In addition, meetings with Personal Academic Tutors are scheduled on at least four occasions in the first year and three occasions in each of the other years of a course.

The University places emphasis on enabling students to develop the independent learning capabilities that will equip them for lifelong learning and future employment, as well as academic achievement. A mixture of independent study, teaching and academic support from Student Services and Library Services, and also the Personal Academic

Tutoring system enables students to reflect on progress and build up a profile of skills, achievements and experiences that will help them to flourish and be successful.

Contact time

In a typical week students will have between 12-15 contact hours of teaching depending on the academic year and in the final year there is normally 3 hours less contact time per week in order to do more independent study

Generally, modules are taught in 3-4 hour blocks and are practice led, with theory taught within practical sessions to enable students to gain an understanding of how to apply research in a practical and professional context.

Independent self-study

In addition to the contact time, students are expected to undertake around 23-26 hours of personal study per week. Typically, this will involve reading, meeting with groups to work on projects and tasks, preparing for assignments and going on trips to see work.

Independent learning is supported by a range of excellent learning facilities, including the Hive and library resources, the virtual learning environment, and extensive electronic learning resources.

Diversity and Inclusion

The University of Worcester is committed to providing a genuinely inclusive learning community for all students. We are working hard towards equalising outcomes for disadvantaged groups and removing any unhelpful obstacles or barriers to learning to ensure everyone is treated equitably. At the University, we embed the principles of inclusion into our professional practice to help ensure that all students have the opportunity to develop, work hard, and excel both academically and personally. We support personalised approaches to learning that take account of each individual's unique experiences and aspirations.

Ensuring the importance of diversity of personal identity and cultural heritage within the whole University community is a key policy imperative. Targeted learning and teaching strategies and networks such as the LGBTQ+ Allies Scheme increase understanding of gender and sexual diversity amongst staff and students. Individuals with protected characteristics including growing numbers who declare as neuro-diverse benefit from strong support structures. There is a commitment to enhancing the experience of Black and Global Majority students through efforts to decolonise the curriculum and encourage the sharing of multiple cultural perspectives. Alongside initiatives to widen the pool of teaching staff of diverse heritage, there is also a recognition of the need to raise awareness of the effects of poorly understood structural racism in order to remove barriers to a fully diverse creative environment.

Students are encouraged to contact the Disability and Dyslexia Service (<https://www2.worc.ac.uk/disabilityanddyslexia/>) for more information and support.

Teaching staff

Students will be taught by a teaching team whose expertise and knowledge are closely matched to the content of the modules on the course and includes respected senior academics and professional practitioners with substantial, current industry experience.

Current staff qualifications:

- 1 Professorship
- 5 Research Doctorates
- 4 Fellows of the Higher Education Academy
- 2 Senior Higher Education Academy

Assessment

The course provides opportunities to test understanding and learning informally through the completion of practice or 'formative' assignments. Each module has one or more formal or 'summative' assessment which is graded and counts towards the overall module grade.

Formative assessments carry no weighting but are really important and designed to help students achieve their best in the final summative assessments. Formative assessment can take different forms such as peer feedback within student support teams, informal peer assessment or rehearsed presentations and performances. It is also embedded in the students ongoing engagement with tutors' and is part of the individual tutorial system. This is an important part of student progress as it effectively creates a feedback loop offering opportunities for development.

Assessment in Theatre, Acting & Performance is not by written examination and normally requires a combination of practical work and critical reflection, for example a performance or group presentation with subsequent oral assessment or written analysis. Written assessment is varied, and some modules may require different forms such as essay, contextual analysis, blog, creative writing or learning journal.

The weighting of these components also varies but on many modules the assessment is weighted 60%/40% towards practice. There are also modules that focus on performance and in which assessment maybe disaggregated. Each assessment is aligned with its intended learning outcomes and learning activities so that it is clear what is being assessed.

The precise assessment requirements for an individual student in an academic year will vary according to the mandatory and optional modules taken, but a typical formal summative assessment pattern for each year of the course is:

Year 1

- 2 x Essays
- 2 x Portfolios
- 5 x Group practical / performance work
- 2 x Critical reflections
- 3 x Individual or group presentations

Year 2

- 2 x Essays
- 3 x Portfolios
- 2 x Critical reflections
- 4 x Group practical / performance work
- 1 x Workshop
- 1 x Piece of creative writing

Year 3

- 3 x Essays
- 1 x Portfolios
- 6 x Group practical / performance work
- 1 x Critical reflection
- 1 x Individual presentation
- 1 x Piece of creative writing
- 1 x Major independent study (approx. 6,000 or equivalent) or 1 x final performance

15. Assessment strategy

Creativity and collaboration are central to the requirements of the programme, and assessment is designed to facilitate creative activity and promote independent and collaborative learning. The assessment programme is such that it:

- has module learning outcomes which relate to the course outcomes
- has assessment criteria that can be applied to all learning outcomes
- is both course-led and student-centred and can be negotiated where appropriate
- is process- and product-based.

The assessed learning which students may achieve on the course can be classified under four different headings, or domains:

- the conceptual involves research, selection and analysis of theory
- the productive demands the interpretation and application of research into practice
- the contextual/critical evidences critical thinking
- the personal/interpersonal tracks the development of those skills pertinent to organisation and successful completion of a project

This synoptic approach to learning and assessment allows students to make connections, and students receive feedback on formative and summative assessments.

All work encourages critical thinking and analysis and is founded upon a range of theoretical perspectives, historical and social contexts and/or performance methodologies. Parity across modules is achieved by a system of equivalence that applies to word counts and practical work.

16. Programme structures and requirements

Please see the award map at Appendix 1 at the end of the document.

The course is available in full- and part-time modes and across the full range of pathways. In the first-year students study either Single Honours or Joint Honours but, thereafter, may combine their courses in different “pathways” - Single Honours Pathway, Major/Minor Pathway and Joint Pathway (in which students take two courses equally weighted).

17. QAA and professional academic standards and quality

The course reflects the Dance, Drama and Performance Subject Benchmark Statement, updated in 2019, that has been used to underpin the course learning outcomes. The course has taken account of the updating of the statement in terms of modules addressing Digital technology, Applied and Participatory theatre. The work is rigorously underpinned by appropriate theoretical approaches to performance e.g. analytic, historical, critical, contextual and the preparation for vocational destinations. The award is located at Level 6 of the FHEQ and the qualification descriptor has been used as a reference point in the course design.

18. Support for students

Each student will be allocated a Personal Academic Tutor from within the Course Team. Tutors play an integral role in a student’s progression through their degree, offering academic and pastoral support and acting as a bridge between different modules and years of study. Students will be given an opportunity to meet with their tutor during induction sessions and four times annually thereafter, with the intention of developing a close working relationship that allows the tutor to build a clear picture of a student’s progress throughout the course.

Academic tutor sessions predominantly take the form of one-to-one sessions, at which notes are taken and stored on SOLE, and use is made of the academic tutorials checklist provided by the Professional Administrative Service.

The Personal Academic Tutor will encourage the student to take responsibility for their own personal and professional development planning. Structured face-to-face and on-line support typically covers the following:

- Awareness of their own strengths and weaknesses.
- A clear vision of what they want to achieve through HE study.
- Greater understanding of how study in their chosen discipline area at the University can help them towards their goals.
- Responsibility for their choices in modules, work and social life.
- A reflective approach to all the feedback they receive on their work.
- A sense (and a record) of progression and achievement in their development of subject and generic skills, attributes and personal qualities.
- An ability to use their greater awareness to articulate the benefits of their HE experience to others including employers.

The Personal Academic Tutor will also:

- Respond to student requests for support and help with problems which affect academic work either at subject level or by referral to other University facilities.
- Support careers education and offer guidance on progression to the world of work.
- Provide information for and assist in the drafting of the University reference.

Although students should meet their Personal Academic Tutor four times annually, students may also need to contact their tutor at other times, particularly if the student is experiencing problems and individual tutorials can be arranged as necessary.

Transition

Students' transition into university life is assisted by a one-week induction programme, which, through a range of activities, introduces students to their course, the staff who will be teaching them, and other students within the School of Arts. Students are, for example, invited to attend the School of Arts Party and have the opportunity to watch performances of graduate and undergraduate work.

During induction week students engage in a range of activities which develop their understanding of the expectations of the course, undergraduate study, and the University's systems and services, including the Library and IT facilities, Media Services, and the Careers and the Counselling Service.

Progressing students are also provided with a brief induction into their second and third years and incoming direct entry students are given additional, dedicated support by a named member of staff whose role it is to help them settle and to understand expectations.

Further support for students can be found at:

- Firstpoint: <https://www2.worc.ac.uk/firstpoint/>
- Student support: <https://www.worcester.ac.uk/life/help-and-support/services-for-students/home.aspx>

- Writing support for international and EU students from the Language Centre.
- The Students' Union, which, as an independent charity devoted to the educational interests and welfare of all students studying at the University, represents student views within the University.

21. Graduate destinations, employability and links with employers

Graduate destinations

Theatre, Acting & Performance graduates work in a range of drama and performance-related professions including as freelance actors, directors, stage managers and creative producers, and as theatre-makers working in companies or as solo practitioners. Theatres, art centres and other professional venues and organisations employ our graduates in areas such as arts administration, theatre and education, outreach work and drama therapy. A significant proportion of graduates go into teaching, either specialising in drama or at primary school level. The subject-specific and excellent transferable skills afford access to a wider range of career opportunities and students are now working in professions as diverse as administration and general management; hotels and catering; information services and information technology; marketing; public relations; social and pastoral care.

In addition, students receive a sound foundation in subject areas suited to additional vocational training courses such as acting and stage management. Our graduates often successfully enrol onto post-graduate teacher training courses, while others choose to further their studies via an MA or MPhil/PhD. The MTheatre Touring Theatre course has been specifically developed for students wanting to extend their practical and professional skills and was launched in 2016.

Links with employers

Theatre, Acting & Performance recognises the importance of professional experience to the development of students, and so outward-facing engagement with creative industry organisations is integral to the delivery of the course. Additionally, we provide opportunities for students to take part in performance productions or special projects developed by the University or its partners. Recent projects of this kind include:

- Club Paradise, a student production which toured the West Midlands and Prague.
- Student performances as part of the Worcester Light Festival.
- Student performances frequently programmed as part of the cultural events surrounding Worcestershire Pride. Students also volunteer in a number of capacities in organising and producing Pride events.
- Student-led Theatre of the Oppressed workshops at The Doon School in Dehradun and at The National School of Drama TIE Company in Delhi.
- School-based tours of Lord of the Flies and DNA, which was also performed as part of a showcase at Birmingham Repertory Theatre.
- Students regularly employed as student ambassadors to deliver workshops, talks, etc at schools and colleges across the West Midlands.

The culture of theatre and performance at Worcester also serves to enhance students' career prospects. Students have access to the work of staff-led performance companies operating in such diverse areas as children's theatre, political theatre, site-specific performance and theatre and disability.

Student Employability

A number of Theatre, Acting & Performance modules are designed to help students develop specific career and professional skills in, for example, fundraising, presentation, business planning, CV writing, networking and applying drama to wider contexts. The introduction of THEA3003 Professional Practice with Placement as a mandatory module gives all SH students the opportunity to engage with the world of work in a professional capacity.

The students are able to obtain advice on career development through the academic tutoring system at all academic Levels.

During the course of their degree, Theatre, Acting & Performance students will have opportunities to:

- Undertake work placements as part of their credit bearing study.
- Meet and benefit from the advice of leading professional theatre practitioners in a range of modules.
- Develop and grow a 'live CV', for presentation to prospective employers.
- Take part in external and/or professional projects.
- Earn as you Learn opportunities as student ambassadors.
- Gain specialist careers advice.
