12. Educational Aims of the Programme

   Compassion for young people and a commitment to social and criminal justice are key concepts underpinning this innovative programme. In design the course aims to prepare students for a dynamic work environment; an environment in which systems of justice can leave young people in need of advocacy, support and guidance and/or management, correction and constraint. The experience of young people is considered from the age of criminal responsibility through to mid-twenties in acknowledgement of changing patterns of dependency and transition.

   This course aims to offer a rich educational experience to support both academic and practitioner development. The course is delivered on campus and in the workplace. The applied nature is reflected in the following course educational aims and learning outcomes.

   The course aims:

   1. To develop competent practitioners and practice managers for entry into or progression within the children and young people’s workforce; specifically working with young people on matters relating to social and criminal justice.
2. To build on students existing experience and knowledge; providing opportunity to develop specific knowledge, skills, values and attitudes that enhance and enrich practice and demonstrate competence in National Occupational Standards for Youth Justice.

3. To debate contemporary work with young people; providing opportunity to evaluate and critically reflect on operational practice within complex, multi-dimensional settings.

4. To critically engage students in contested moral, ethical, cultural, social, economic and political debates that frame contemporary social and criminal justice practice.

5. To enable students to evaluate their practitioner role in relation to achieving positive pro-social outcomes with young people.

6. To analyse processes of assessment, strategy formation, planned intervention, evaluation, research and policy development.

7. To enhance student ability to make sound judgements based on knowledge of factors that influence young people’s behaviour and choices.

8. To critically engage students in discourse influencing the construction and representation of youth, justice, crime, criminality and victimisation.

9. To develop an analytical and critical approach to problem solving to promote evidence based and reflective practice.

10. To develop graduate and transferable skills promoting autonomous learning and an enjoyment and commitment to continuous professional development.

Learning and teaching in the programme is designed to develop, specialist knowledge, skills and attitudes relevant to practitioners working with young people. Additionally, students will be provided with opportunity to develop academic and transferable skills, which will contribute to their development as independent and autonomous lifelong learners.

Knowledge, skills and attitudes will be developed through a variety of learning strategies on campus and in the workplace including: lead lectures, group work, case study analysis, role-play, practice analysis, development of reflective practice skills, experiential learning, work-based learning, e-learning incorporating the use of Blackboard and Pebble Pad, tutorial support and participation within a learning group or action learning set.

Reflective practice is a key element within the learning and teaching strategy and facilitates the integration of theory and practice. Reflection provides students with the opportunity to examine their personal progress and development and to devise strategies for creating further development opportunities. In addition, reflective practice provides students with the opportunity to critically analyse theory, research and other evidence and reflect on this in the light of their own work with young people.

This is a vocationally based programme so the importance of Personal Development Planning (PDP) is acknowledged and incorporated throughout. The University of Worcester Policy and Quality Standards for supporting PDP is implemented by providing:

- Opportunity to engage in PDP in tutorial groups and during work based supervision
• Accessible support mechanisms for engagement in PDP both within the course structure and through careers and other support offered by Student Services
• Opportunity to build a record of their learning achievements through portfolio work
• Opportunity to discuss their PDP with a tutor or advisor

In general PDP activity is captured in the student’s WBL Portfolio. All information relating to building and maintaining a portfolio is found in the course WBL Handbook. Work based learning requirements conform to the university’s Policy on the Management of Work-based and Placement Learning (2012). Full details of all aspects of the programme’s work-based learning requirements can be found in the course WBL Handbook.

14. Assessment Strategy

Assessments are designed to assess specific knowledge, attitudes and intellectual and practical skills that underpin practice when working with young people. The programme will also assess evidence of student’s competence against National Occupational Standards. Students will, therefore, participate in a range of assessment activities; written assignments, presentations, role-plays, group work activities, work-based activities, portfolio building and practice observations (a full Assessment Matrix can be found in the Course Handbook Appendix 1).

The assessment strategy is designed to enable students to demonstrate their achievement of the course aims and outcomes through meeting the assessed learning outcomes presented in course Module Guides and WBL Workbooks. The strategy is designed to assist students with their personal and professional development by enabling them to identify and build upon their strengths and to identify and address areas for improvement. This will be achieved by formative and summative assessment of both theory and practice and by acquisition of the skills and discipline required of a reflective practitioner.

Assessment and moderation strategies are designed to meet the requirements of the University’s Assessment Policy and the Institute of Health & Society Moderation and Assessment Policy.

The course assessment strategy takes account of the fact that students gain in confidence and skills during the period of study. Formative assessments that do not contribute to the students grades are used to help focus the student on themes, knowledge and skills of particular importance to their development. Generally students receive a gradual decrease in the level of support and guidance offered for summative assessments as they progress through the programme. This both assumes and encourages increased student independence and greater learner autonomy and is reflected in the construction of module learning outcomes.

Assessment of work based learning is essential in order to demonstrate that students have achieved the necessary practice skills and disciplines. Students who fail to meet minimum practice requirements and/or the required WBL Outcomes will be given opportunity to re-sit practice assessments in accordance with university regulations.

15. Programme Structures and Requirements.

The course is single honours, modular and is designed to be studied, full or part-time.
Students must undertake a 30 credit work based learning modules at Level 4, 5 and 6 and a 30 credit Independent Study (dissertation) during their final year. To gain the award 120 credits (or equivalence) at Level 4, 120 credits at Level 5 and 120 credits at Level 6 are required.

Work based learning (WBL) is an important aspect of your award. Vocationally focused courses are designed to develop knowledge, skills and attitudes for a specific sector. Therefore, the programme has a component of WBL. In the light of this, the course has been designed in consultation with key employers from across the sector and effort has been made to involve employers at every stage of course development. These links are maintained through representation on the Course Committee coordinated by the Course Leader and through a WBL Forum coordinated by the WBL Coordinator to ensure continued course currency and relevance. Given the importance of practitioner insight when working with young people, practitioners have contributed to course development and curriculum design and experienced practitioners contribute specialist knowledge and individual perspectives as valued members of the teaching team.

Students are responsible for securing a suitable work based learning placement. Assistance and introductions are facilitated by the WBL Coordinator who has access to a diverse range of placement opportunities. The available support is intended to help students gain access to work based experiences that enhance learning and employability. However, it remains the responsibility of the student to present for placement in a disciplined and convincing manner. Failure to secure a placement will prevent a student's progress on the course.

A minimum of 600 hours must be spent in a relevant work environment during the course, with no less than 200 hours achieved by the end of Level 4, 400 hours achieved by end of Level 5 and 600 hours achieved by end of Level 6. A minimum of 160 hours must be spent in a relevant work based learning environment during each level of study. Fifty per cent of the minimum practice hours must involve face to face work with young people. Employment in a related workplace may be used as the students main work based learning environment provided that it is assessed by the WBL Coordinator as meeting necessary requirements. Further details of all aspects of the work-based requirements for the course can be found in the course WBL Handbook.

All modules are identified as mandatory (M) or optional (O). All mandatory modules are made available and must be completed successfully in order achieve the award. Optional modules will be subject to demand. Advice on module availability will be made available prior to module selection. University Electives are option modules that are available to all students.

21. Indicators of Quality Standards

The University underwent a QAA Institutional Audit in March 2011. The audit confirmed that confidence can be placed in the soundness of the institution’s current and likely future management of the academic standards of its awards and the quality of the learning opportunities available to students. The audit team highlighted several aspects of good practice, including the student academic representative (StARs) initiative, the proactive approach which supports the student experience for disabled students, the comprehensiveness of the student online environment (SOLE), the wide range of opportunities afforded to students to enhance their employability, the institution’s commitment to enhancement, and the inclusive approach to working with its collaborative partners.

The course has been designed by staff responsible for the Youth and Community programme. The quality of the course team’s work has been acknowledged.

‘The standard of teaching – and learning – is high. The relationship between staff and students is excellent. Staff are very approachable and supportive but maintain appropriate professional boundaries. This models the way in which workers would be expected to relate to young people and is based on sound youth and community principles and practices including co-operative learning, participation and a commitment to equality.’

External Examiner Youth and Community Report 2012

22. Graduate Destinations, Employability & Links with Employers
The sector working with young people has undergone a sustained period of change since the introduction of the Children’s Act 2004 and more recently as a consequence of economic constraint and changing political priorities. Employers have increasingly required skilled competent staff to work flexibly, cope with uncertainty and yet maintain professional integrity and discipline; complexity, fragmentation and uncertainty have tended to dominate.

In addition the future of the Youth Justice Board and the administration of the youth justice system has been the source of debate, review and significant revision. A focus on Payment by Results, restorative justice, and multi-professional and multi-agency responses to issues of criminal and social justice have informed the emerging context for this programme. In consultation with employers the course seeks to prepare students for future careers in a range of operational contexts as identified in the section Graduate Destinations below.

Graduate Destinations
Graduates are expected to seek employment working in statutory, voluntary and commercial organisations, with a small number of enterprising graduates starting their own businesses. Examples of the types of paid employment within criminal and social justice contexts include:

- Youth Offending Services.
- Advice and guidance services to young people
- Advocacy and rights based services
- Reintegration Work
- Social enterprise
- Preventative health and wellbeing services targeting young people
- Housing support services targeting young people
- Youth justice and crime prevention work with young people

On completion of the award further study can also be considered. The programme team offer a masters level qualification in Transformative Practice. Other masters level courses including a MA Social Work (which confers professional Social Worker status) and MSc Public Health are available. Students are encouraged to apply for masters level study but places are not guaranteed.

Student Employability
Student employability remains a high priority which reflects both university aspirations and the vocational nature of the course. The course will be constantly reviewed to ensure that it is fit for purpose and capable of equipping students to meet employment challenges.

Work based elements within the course combined with the participation of practitioners and practice managers within the delivery of taught modules help students locate their knowledge and skills within a practice context. This significantly enhances student employability and better prepares students for the workplace.

Conditions in practice are difficult but evidence suggests that students graduating from similar programme such as the BA (Hons) Youth and Community Work are competing favourable for employment and that a wider range of employers than ever before are recognising the contribution that effectively trained and knowledgeable practitioners can make to the achievement of their aims and goals.
Graduate employability will be tracked and monitored through Higher Education Statistics Agency data generated from the Destinations of Leavers from Higher Education survey.

Links to Employers
A range of service providers have supported the development of the Youth and Community programme at the university and the need for a focused Youth Justice BA course has been identified by potential applicants, existing students and partners. Colleagues from the statutory, voluntary and independent sector have kept the course team informed of the changing conditions in practice and this combined with research and feedback from students has resulted in the development of this course. Consultation on course design has been held with representatives of key service providers including:
YSS – Youth Support Services
Worcester & Herefordshire Youth Offending Service
Prospects - Children’s Services

We continue to consult widely and invest heavily in maintaining and building the work based learning infrastructure for such courses to ensure the best possible experience for all students. We also encourage students to seek out placement opportunities best suited to their future career aspirations.

Students and graduates of this course will benefit from the strong links to practice already established with experienced practitioners and service managers contributing to both taught aspects of the course and to a range of on-going quality assurance arrangements.

Please note: This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if s/he takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in the module outlines and the course handbook provided to all students at the start of the course. The accuracy of the information contained in this document is reviewed by the University and may be checked by the Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education.
