12. Educational aims of the programme

The LLB (Hons) Law with Criminology at University of Worcester aims to provide an intellectually stimulating and cohesive programme of study. As a Qualifying Law Degree it aims to exempt students from the Academic Stage of Qualification to be a Solicitor or Barrister. Through the range of intellectual, practical and transferable skills gained, graduates will also be well placed to enter a variety of fields of employment including, amongst others, the criminal justice system, education, business management and financial compliance. The degree also aims to enhance students' legal knowledge of criminal law by contextualising their studies in a wider theoretical focus on contested social scientific explanations for crime, victimisation and deviance.

Specific aims of the programme include:

- To provide a sound knowledge and detailed understanding of the principal institutions and procedures of the Legal System of England and Wales;
- To give students an appreciation of the major concepts and principles underpinning law;
- To deliver a number of modules covering the foundations of legal knowledge subject areas enabling students to gain exemption from the academic stage of training for the legal professions;
- To develop a critical understanding of key concepts and theoretical approaches in relation to crime, deviance and victimisation in domestic and international contexts;

- To offer options which enable students to study chosen areas of law and criminology in depth;
- To develop a critical appreciation of the effect of different, cultural, social and economic backgrounds and value positions in relation to the politics of criminal justice policy and practice;
- To foster rigour in linking theoretical analysis with empirical enquiry and the promotion of a critical approach to problem solving, research and the ethical principles governing subject specific research;
- To enable students to become independent learners and researchers and to develop general critical, analytical and problem solving skills;
- To develop graduate and transferable skills relevant to employment promoting autonomous learning, enjoyment and commitment to academic and professional development.

Learning, teaching and assessment

The LLB (Hons) Law with Criminology programme is delivered using a variety of flexible methods across a range of relevant and interesting modules. This includes both classroom-based teaching methods such as seminars and lectures and also technologically enhanced learning by creative use of the Blackboard Virtual Learning Environment using a range of online methods including podcasts, discussion boards, group work, quizzes and directed independent study. The course team also supports and encourages students to actively engage with the legal profession outside their academic studies by such activities as visiting courts, shadowing legal professionals, work placements and professional mentoring. Assessment methods include examinations, essays and reports, interviewing and advising, case studies, group videos, moots, oral presentations, research projects and work/clinic based assessment.

Much of the law teaching takes place in a purpose built courtroom, which is ideal for the purposes of mooting and mock trials enabling students to contextualise their studies in a simulated work based environment.

14. Assessment strategy

The assessment strategy is designed with reference to the University of Worcester Assessment Strategy (2015), the learning, teaching and assessment statement from the QAA Law benchmarks and the ongoing research into legal education including the Legal Education and Training Review.

A mixed assessment strategy is designed to ensure the assessment of the various learning outcomes on the Programme. For example, examinations are employed often to assess a number of skills ranging from knowledge and understanding whereas written coursework may often be employed to demonstrate skills of critical analysis, evaluation and synthesis. Portfolio preparation in the Professional Skills and Ethics module demonstrates skills of organisation and time management. Critical reflection is demonstrated at various points and in a number of ways, including through the use of a case studies and court reports. Preparation for mooting demonstrates an ability to work within a team as does the preparation for interviewing and advising. Formative assessment opportunities are available in all modules on the LLB (Hons) Law with Criminology giving students a further opportunity to engage with feedback, reflect upon their own learning and feed-forward into later summative assessments.

Although the development of higher critical thinking skills is a feature of all levels of the degree, the assessment strategy also recognises a staged development from knowledge, understanding and application in level 4, with these outcomes being further developed and complemented by skills of legal research in level 5 (which is also a feature of the Professional Legal Skills and Ethics course in level 4). Level 6 modules build on these earlier outcomes and also require students to demonstrate skills of analysis, evaluation and synthesis that are commonly most associated with level 6 study. The assessment of research skills and independent research skills is evident at all stages, but is most prominent at the upper levels, involving a close interaction with the outcomes of evaluation, synthesis and critical analysis. In addition, although skills of critical evaluation and analysis do not feature prominently in the learning outcomes of level 4 courses – the generic assessment guidelines anticipate that excellent students at the top end may well have already demonstrated these skills and are rewarded accordingly.

Assessment guidance and marking criteria are provided to students for each item of assessment. This guidance refers to separate generic law marking criteria for Levels 4, 5 & 6, reflecting the staged development through the Programme.

Each assessment item is specifically linked to the Learning Outcomes for the module contained with the module outline and is graded according to the relevant assessment criteria for each level of study.

There are opportunities in all modules for formative assessment, giving students the opportunity to receive feedback and to reflect upon their learning.

Appropriate support in teaching, learning and assessment for students with disabilities is provided in conjunction with the University Disability & Dyslexia Service - <https://www2.worc.ac.uk/disabilityanddyslexia/>

16. QAA and professional academic standards and quality

This award is located at Level 6 of the FHEQ. The 2015 QAA Honours Degree Subject Benchmark Statement: LAW articulates the knowledge, skills and categories of achievement to be expected of successful honours graduates in the field. These, together with the contextual statement have been used to craft module learning outcomes and content as well as learning, teaching and assessment strategies of all modules.

The Law benchmarks can be found at the following link: QAA Benchmarks: LAW

Professional Requirements

The Solicitors Regulation Authority and the Bar Standards Board stipulate a number of requirements for Qualifying Law Degrees. These include stipulations as to the content of the degree (the foundations of legal knowledge subjects) and also a range of academic and transferable skills listed in the Joint Statement from 1999.

The foundations of legal knowledge

The subjects required by the Solicitors Regulation Authority and Bar Standards Board as foundations of legal knowledge for a Qualifying Law Degree are:

- Public Law, including Constitutional Law, Administrative Law and Human Rights;
- Law of the European Union;
- Criminal Law;
- Obligations 1 – Contract
- Obligations 2 – Tort
- Property Law; and

- Equity and the Law of Trusts.

These are taught in this Programme in the mandatory modules on the LLB:

Foundation	LLB Course
Obligations 1	Law of Contract LLBL1001
Obligations 2	Law of Torts LLBL2002
Criminal Law	Criminal Law LLBL2007
Public Law	Public Law LLBL1002
Law of the European Union	European Union Law LLBL2003
Property Law	Land Law LLBL3014
Equity and the Law of Trusts	Equity and Trusts LLBL3003

In addition, students are expected to have received training in legal research. These are taught pervasively throughout the Programme and are a prominent feature of the Professional Skills and Ethics Module (LLBL1004).

Students must pass all foundations of legal knowledge subjects. On the University of Worcester scale this means that they must gain D- or above in the module as a whole. The Taught Courses Regulatory Framework does not allow for condonation or compensation of modules.

Maximum Attempts

Students are permitted a maximum of three attempts at passing foundations of legal knowledge subjects. (Take>Reassessment>Re-take with no reassessment). This relates to those modules specified in the table above; see also s.20 retrieval of failure. Optional modules have the reassessment opportunities as described in the Taught Courses Regulatory Framework.

Time Limit

To gain a qualifying law degree, students on the LLB must complete their degree within 6 years. This time limit applies to both full and part time students.

Full details of the regulatory requirements for Qualifying Law Degrees can be found in the Academic Stage Handbook.

17. Support for students

The LLB team is committed to ensuring that all students are given consideration and support throughout their time at the University of Worcester.

Student's transition into University life is assisted by an initial short, one week's induction programme which through a range of activities introduces students to their course, the staff who will be teaching them and the Institute. Students are for example invited to attend the Institute of Humanities and Creative Arts (IHCA) Freshers' Party in induction week.

During this initial induction week and in the first Worcester Week students are involved in a range of activities, which support them in developing an understanding of the expectations of their course, undergraduate study and the University's systems and services. They have talks or tours, for example, which introduce them to the Library and IT facilities, Media Services, the Careers and the Counselling Service.

Students are also provided with a brief induction into their second and third year. Direct entry students are also provided with a brief and informal induction. In addition, the Institute for Humanities and Creative Arts monitors attendance closely in first year and provides support for first year students through the First Year Tutor system. This comprise of a dedicated member of staff who is available every day for drop-in sessions during the semester between 13:00 & 14:00. Online support is also provided through Twitter, Facebook and email within 24 hours during the semester although the response time may be longer during the summer holidays.

All students are allocated a Personal Academic Tutor who will advise them on issues related to their course throughout their study at the University and who monitors their progress. Personal Academic Tutor sessions usually take one of two forms: either one-to-one sessions where notes are taken and stored on SOLE, or group-based sessions where general points and issues relating to the course are dealt with. Students are invited to meet their Personal Academic Tutor twice a semester. New students will have four timetabled appointments with their Personal Academic Tutors in their first semester.

Personal Academic Tutors fulfil a multi-faceted role in giving students advice on any issues that may affect a student's time at University. This can involve consultations on:

- Academic issues including study skill development, revision techniques and module choices.
- Employability – advice concerning Training Contract or Pupillage Applications, Work Placements or Mentoring Schemes, CV advice
- Pastoral support for students with issues outside the course that are affecting their studies, these can involve decisions as to whether to interrupt or withdraw from their studies due to ill health or other reasons.

The Personal Academic Tutor arrangements at Level 4 are embedded within the Professional Skills and Ethics Course (LLBL1004) and a self-reflective log of meetings with the PAT forms an item of assessment.

Staff teaching students on modules support students through one to one and small group tutorials; and provide students with clear indications of when they will be available to see students either on their office door, via email or in module outlines.

Students are further supported through a range of online support, for example via email or skype tutorials. All modules are supported through the virtual learning environment accessed through Blackboard. The Course Handbook is also available online.

Furthermore, the Course team liaises with a range of centrally provided support services to ensure that students access all appropriate channels of support, these include for example:

The Disability and Dyslexia Service <https://www2.worc.ac.uk/disabilityanddyslexia/> within Student Services provide specialist support on a one to one basis.

- Writing support from the Royal Literary Fund Writers in Residence.
- Writing support for international and EU students from the Language Centre. <http://www.worcester.ac.uk/your-home/humanities-language-centre.html>
- The Students' Union which as an independent charity, devoted to the educational interests and welfare of all students studying at the University it represents student views within the University.

In most cases, these criteria will be met by the academic grades and the personal statement on the UCAS application. In situations where either of these criteria is in doubt, applicants will be encouraged to apply and their application considered through the route of a sample task followed by an interview to explore any aspect of their application that may require further clarification.

21. Graduate destinations, employability and links with employers

Graduate destinations

This is a qualifying law degree that enables students to go on to train as solicitors or barristers. After graduating students wishing to train as Solicitors undertake the Legal Practice Course (usually for 1 Year full time) and then undertake a Training Contract (usually for 2 years) where they are attached to a firm of solicitors. Students wishing to become barristers undertake the Bar Professional Training Course and apply for a pupillage.

In 2014, there were 5,541 registered training contracts (data from Solicitors Regulation Authority) and 845 registered pupillages (data from the Bar Standards Board).

In addition to careers in private practice in a firm of solicitors or a set of chambers there are a number of other areas of employment where Solicitors and Barristers can work. These include working “in-house” in a company, with the Crown Prosecution Service or in the Government Legal Services.

Many graduates also go on to a wide range of alternative graduate destinations including business management, the criminal justice system, banking and financial and regulatory compliance.

Graduates have the possibility of a range of opportunities available to them that are associated with studies in Criminology. The majority of Criminology graduates go to work in:

- Probation;
- Prison services;
- the voluntary sector;
- third sector organisations and social enterprises;
- law enforcement agencies such as the CPS or the police;
- further or higher education.

Student employability

The employability strategy on the LLB is multi-faceted in that it consists of a combination employability skills embedded within the modules taught, work placement opportunities within the curriculum and also extra-curricular opportunities available to students.

The central feature of the employability provision is the Legal Advice Centre – this will be set up in 2016 and will operate from the Hive Building in Worcester. It will be run by a practising Solicitor and will enable students on the LLB to give free legal advice to the local community. Local solicitors will also be invited to act pro bono in the Centre. This interaction will mean that students gain valuable skills in the Centre and also meet members of the legal profession.

All students will be able to work in the Legal Advice Centre and it will be a compulsory part of the Professional Skills and Ethics course. Students can also elect to take a third year Work Placement in the Centre in LLBL3012.

Within the curriculum, advice is given to students on the development of transferable skills such as commercial awareness, teamwork and problem solving which are highly prized in the legal profession. Information relating to access to areas of the legal profession – for example in relation to Training Contract or Pupillage Applications is given in LLBL1004 and also by discussions with the Personal Academic Tutors.

Links with employers

The law team view employability as a key component of the LLB and links with the legal community form a major part of both the curricula and extra curricula activities. A Law Advisory Forum of legal professionals is being founded to provide employability opportunities for LLB students. These opportunities will include placements, mentoring and interview evenings.

Legal professionals have committed to providing work placements, mentoring and other employability advice and guidance to students on the LLB.

In addition to the employability provision above, students are encouraged to take up volunteering opportunities, and internships, offered through the Students Union and with local employers. Students who engage in certain extra-curricular activities may be eligible for the Worcester Award

The central hub of the employability provision will be the Legal Advice Centre. Through this centre, students will be able to gain legal work experience in advising members of the public on real legal issues. Students will be supervised by a qualified practitioner on the LLB Teaching team. Training on the Legal Advice Centre will form an integral part of the Professional Legal Skills and Ethics course LLBL1004 in the first year of the LLB and students will be able to volunteer in the Centre and also do a year-long placement in the Centre as part of LLBL3012 in the third year.

The criminology team is in the process of developing links with the police and prison services. Service practitioners and managers contribute to the specialist teaching in Criminology at Worcester providing unique insights to work in the sector, and also opportunities for students to meet prospective employers.

Please note: This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if s/he takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in associated course documentation e.g. course handbooks, module outlines and module specifications.
