

Prove Your Employability

On the grid below, there are some examples of the skills frequently asked for by employers. Thinking of your education, activities, interests and work experience, write examples on the grid of evidence you have to show an employer you possess these skills.

Skills	Education	Activities and Interests	Work Experience (Paid and Unpaid)
Communication Tact and Diplomacy
Working in a Team Networking Negotiation
Creativity/ Innovation Adaptability
Leadership Drive and Initiative Motivating Others
Sector Awareness Problem Solving Project Management

Filling the Skills Gap

Are there any skills you need to develop further? If so, where could you develop them?

Skills	Opportunities to Further Develop

"21st century graduates need to demonstrate to employers that they can 'hit the ground running'.

In addition to working hard to gain a good degree, students should engage in extracurricular activities, and obtain work experience in order to develop skills that will make them better prepared for the world of work.

It is also important for students to become self-aware and develop the confidence to market themselves effectively when the time comes to apply for jobs." - Carl Gilleard – Chief Executive Association of Graduate Recruiters

Don't forget to record your experiences and achievements and reflect on how these can help to improve your future employability. The Worcester Award is a great way of collecting this information to use later in your applications and interviews; www.worc.ac.uk/careers/worcesteraward

If you would like to book a careers appointment please visit:

<https://worchester.targetconnect.net>

myCareer

Date updated: 30/06/21 (Information correct at time of going to print)