Student Belonging at Worcester: Maximising Pastoral and Pedagogical Approaches for Building Success

17th-18th June 2025

Programme

INTRODUCTION

This year's University Learning and Teaching Conference, has 'Belonging and Mattering' as its core theme due to the growing sector interest in the significant role that this is now playing in the development of student success strategies. Student populations across Higher Education are rapidly becoming more diverse, not only culturally, but also through a combination of both purposeful and circumstantial environmental factors that are influencing students' decisions on what and where to study. We now see more students choosing to commute to university, choosing to undertake employment whilst studying and choosing to come to university from more diverse educational backgrounds. All of this is changing the landscape of what a 'typical' student community now looks like and it's important that Universities continue to adapt, in order to ensure that all students continue to have an equal opportunity to connect, belong and thrive.

We are delighted to confirm that we have three fantastic keynote speakers supporting this year's event.

Professor Abigail Moriarty began her career as a nurse and is now the Pro-Vice Chancellor for Education and Students at the University of Lincoln. Professor Moriarty's research interests focus on student learning and professional practice, particularly on understanding and overcoming barriers to student success in Higher Education and has recently concentrated on designing a universally inclusive student experience that is both profession-facing and inspiring to learners. She has delivered numerous presentations on Universal Design for Learning to local, national, and international audiences.

Our second keynote speaker is Dr Susan Kenyon, who will focusing her presentation on developing a sense of belonging for commuter students and the positive steps that educators and institutions can take to meet the needs of their commuters. Dr Kenyon is a Principal Lecturer at Canterbury Christ Church University and winner of the 2025 Vicky Randall Prize for her outstanding contribution to advancing teaching and learning in political studies.

Our final keynote speaker is Dr Mark Flisher, our newly appointed Head of the Institute of Arts and Humanities at the University of Worcester who will be sharing his insights into his work around EDI and wellbeing, particularly in the area of neurodivergence, as well as his aspirations for his new role at Worcester.

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

Professor Abigail Moriarty
University of Lincoln

Title: A Student-Centric University: Redefining Higher Education Today

'In today's higher education landscape, placing students at the heart of decision-making is more than just a buzzword. This presentation will challenge and provoke thought, repositioning students as true co-creators of their educational experience, rather than a mere tick box.'

Professor Abigail Moriarty joined the University of Lincoln in April 2024 as Pro Vice-Chancellor for Education and Students. Prior to this, she spent four years as Pro Vice-Chancellor and Professor of Learning and Teaching at the University of Sunderland.

Before her tenure at Sunderland, Professor Moriarty served at De Montfort University (DMU) in Leicester. There, she was Director of Learning and Teaching and later interim Pro Vice-Chancellor Academic. Abigail has extensive experience in enhancing student experience in Higher Education.

Her research interests focus on student learning and professional practice, particularly on understanding and overcoming barriers to student success in Higher Education. Abigail has recently concentrated on designing a universally inclusive student experience that is profession-facing and inspiring to learners. She has delivered numerous invited keynote presentations on Universal Design for Learning to local, national, and international audiences. Additionally, she is a Trustee for the United Kingdom Advising and Tutoring association.

Professor Moriarty has significantly influenced the student experience throughout her career. During her time at the University of Sunderland, she contributed to improved student outcomes, leading to the university being ranked in the top 30 of the 2024 Guardian Complete University Guide. The University of Sunderland was also nominated for University of the Year in the Times Higher Education Awards in 2021 and 2024 and named University of the Year for Social Inclusion in The Times and Sunday Times Good University Guide 2021. Since her time at Lincoln, she has completed an academic governance review and implemented changes, along with the realisation and execution of the University Teaching, Learning and Student Experience strategy.

Dr Susan Kenyon
Canterbury Christ Church University

Title: Developing a Sense of Belonging and Mattering for Commuter Students

Dr Susan Kenyon is a Principal Lecturer in Politics at Canterbury Christ Church University and winner of the 2025 Vicky Randall Prize for her outstanding contribution to advancing teaching and learning in political studies, awarded by the UK Political Studies Association. Dr Kenyon has dedicated her career to advancing social inclusion, working initially as an academic researcher, moving into industry and politics at the Department for Transport and Transport for London. Dr Kenyon returned to higher education in 2015, as a Director of Learning and Teaching, working across the institution to influence individuals' pedagogy and university policies and practices, before returning to teaching, to focus on empowering her students with the knowledge, skills and understanding to make the change that they wish to see. Dr Kenyon has changed pedagogy, policy and practice in her own institution and across the sector, through impactful research and engaging dissemination and continues to advance inclusion in the transport industry, as a consultant on transport and social inclusion, to multiple government bodies.

Dr Mark Flisher
University of Worcester

Title: A Call for Spicy Curricula: Towards a More Provocative and Inclusive Curriculum Design for Higher Education

Dr Mark Flisher is Head of the Institute of Arts and Humanities at the University of Worcester and has been a pedagogue for two decades across multiple organisations including Secondary, Further and Higher Education. His research and practice are primarily concerned with the body in performance and the ways that embodiment can challenge established norms, particularly in reference to identity. Most recently, Mark has established a research enquiry into student mental health and wellbeing in artistic curriculums where he has advocated for a radical rethink of Higher Education curriculum design through inclusive practice.

REGISTRATION

Registration for this conference can be completed via the online form until 17:00 on Friday 6th June 2025. The conference comprises presentations, posters, workshops, and keynote speeches. When registering, we ask you to select which day you will be attending (Tuesday or Wednesday). Each day is different so delegates are welcome to join both days or pick one.

Delegates are free to choose any presentation session to attend but are advised to stay in a section until its conclusion. This will help limit distractions for the presenters, chair and audience. For the workshops we will ask you to register on the day.

Please note that this programme version is subject to change in the event of unforeseen circumstances.
